Counsellors

The decision to seek support is an individual one that can come about for various reasons and at different stages of life. Some people seek psychotherapy to cope with difficult feelings, thoughts, and behaviors to help transition to new life experiences or to adjust to changes that can come after illness, injury, or traumatic events.

In regard to the first more general question, the opinion of the Professional Practices and Ethics Committee was that “there may be a situation in which a contingency option makes perfect sense and is permissible primarily based upon whether or not the contingency and the outcome of the psychological service or assessment provided are tied together…” If the service provided and in Why therapists should walk the talk, the theoretical and empirical case for personal practice in therapist training and professional development, cultural competence and ethical decision making for health, cultural competence and ethical decision making are two separate yet intrinsically related concepts which are central to services rendered by all health care professionals.

Cultural competence is based on ethical principles and informs ethical decision making. In spite of this important connection, the interrelationship of these two concepts does not receive the attention it deserves in the literature. Understanding Child Abuse and Neglect at NAP.edu Page 253.

Interventions and Treatment Examples of intervention in child maltreatment include the investigation of child abuse reports, state child protection agencies' clinical treatment of physical and psychological injuries, family counseling, self-help services, the provision of goods and services such as homemaking or respite care, and legal action against the perpetrator and removal of Group home Wikipedia.

A group home is a private residence model of medical care for those with complex health needs. Traditionally, the model has been used for children or young people who cannot live with their families, people with chronic disabilities who may be adults or seniors, or people with dementia and related aged illnesses.
