Attachment theory, originating in the work of John Bowlby, is a psychological, evolutionary and ethological theory that provides a descriptive and explanatory framework for understanding interpersonal relationships between human beings. In order to formulate a comprehensive theory of the nature of early attachments, Bowlby explored a range of fields including evolution by natural selection. Attachment theory originating in the work of John Bowlby is a psychological evolutionary and ethological theory that provides a descriptive and explanatory framework for understanding interpersonal relationships between human beings. In order to formulate a comprehensive theory of the nature of early attachments, Bowlby explored a range of fields including evolution by natural selection. Attachment in children is a biological instinct in which proximity to an attachment figure is sought when the child senses or perceives threat or discomfort. Attachment behaviour anticipates a response by the attachment figure which will remove threat or discomfort. Attachment also describes the function of availability which is the degree to which the authoritative figure is responsive to the child. Attachment theory and primary caregiver love. In the Fourth Dimension Annual Review of Psychology, on the word of no less an authority than Albert Einstein scholars can eliminate gravitation as a cause of romantic love. Commenting on an Englishman’s theory that as the earth rotated gravity caused people to be upside down or horizontal at times and to do foolish things like falling in love, Einstein declared that “Falling in love is not the most stupid thing people do but gravitation...”
