This paper reviews the corpus of research on feedback with a particular focus on formative feedback—defined as information communicated to the learner that is intended to modify the productivity of working hours proportional to his working hours and if i is typical of workers a firm's effective labor input is the sum of hours worked over all workers. This would rationalize the use of worker hours. More plausibly i's work effort depends on his hours of work E if H i where f H i embodies the stress, fatigue, monotony and stimulation that accompanies work.
